Anne Martin Named Observer At S. F. For Thomas Group

Miss Anne Martin has been appointed one of the three observers for the Post War World Council to attend the San Francisco conference, according to the Nevada State Journal, published in Reno, where the Carmel feminist and pacifist is spending an extended vacation. Norman Thomas is the chairman of the council of which Miss Martin is a member.

According to the Journal, Miss Martin has been recently ill but intends to do some work in connection with the council's activities as soon as she sufficiently recovers.

"Revision of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals in some particulars are advocated by the council," she is quoted as saying to a Journal reporter. She thinks that the provisions implemented by the Yalta agreements, "which permit the big three nations to commit armed aggression against the small democracies," especially need modification.

"Alice" Comes To Forest Theatre Saturday, Sunday

Humpty Dumpty, The Mock Turtle, Tweedledum and Tweedledee, and of course, Alice herself, will all come to life in the lovely old Forest Theater tomorrow afternoon when members of the Children's Theater Center present "A Few of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland". This performance will be repeated Sunday afternoon. After each show, the audience will have a chance to meet the young actors on the lower field. Coco cola, popcorn, and peanuts will be on sale at this time.

A musical treat is in store for those who come to see "Alice", too. The high school string quartette will open the show with an overture. Basil Allaire, first violin; Douglas Calley, second violin; Florita Botts, viola; and Andrea Del Monte, cello. The curtain raiser will be a scene from William Shakespeare's "As You Like It." There has been a substitution in the cast for this scene. Mr. Alexander Merivale will play the role of Duke Frederick, originally assigned to Jim Jensen. Joan Larkey plays Rosalind, and Carol Hildebrand will appear as Celia.

The Carmel police department have promised their cooperation in directing strangers, and in handling the traffic problem.

Ushers for the Sat. show are Bernadette France and Nancy Jane Santee of the 7th grade; Betty Roeth and Beva Pilling, high school. Sunday afternoon ushers will be Joan Sanders and Zura Mae Lipp, 7th grade; Esta and Ruth Van Neil, high school.

Additional adult tickets will be available at the gate of the Forest Theatre.

ABSENT BALLOTS

Absent voter ballots for the School Board Election may be obtained from Harold Nielsen, Clerk of the board, at his grocery store on Dolores Street. Applications must be received by him not later than Saturday, May 12.

Several Carmel elections in the past have been determined by the absent vote.

Lt Campbell Home From Rescue Work

Lt. John Campbell, son of the late Argyle Campbell, is home this week visiting his mother, after two years away, serving in the Navy air force as a pilot, first in the patrol service in the Atlantic, and lately piloting a P. B. M. flying boat in the rescue squadron in the Pacific.

Based on Saipan, his job was to scour the seas for planes forced down on their return from their bomb runs over Japan and Japanese held territory. His last mission before coming home was the rescue of a bomber crew marooned on a live volcano. Returning from a raid over Tokyo, the B-29, which had been damaged over the target, was forced down at sea in the Bonin area. The nearest land was a volcano, rising almost sheer out of the water, and giving off a threatening stream of smoke from its cone. The crew, paddling ashore in their rubber boat, signaled their distress with their "Gibson Girl" pack radio. Lt. Campbell, searching that area, spotted their signals, when they shot off their Very pistol and radioed the nearest naval vessel of their location so they could be picked up.

His service in the rescue patrol was terminated April 7 when he was ordered to fly a damaged sea plane to Alameda, where he is now stationed, assigned to operations with the Twelfth Naval District.

His wife and Sally Elizabeth, two years old, who are making a home for him in Alameda, accompanied him to Carmel this week end for a visit with his mother, and with Mrs. Campbell's sister, Mrs. Alton Walker.

"Our Town" Subject Of Church Women's Annual Meeting

May breakfast features the annual meeting today of the Monterey Peninsula Council of Church Women beginning at 11:00 o'clock at the Methodist Church in Pacific Grove. Mrs. J. W. Dickinson of Carmel is president and together with Mrs. Vera Peck Millis has arranged the program. Speakers following the breakfast are Mrs. R. Mason, who will tell of religious teaching of day school classes, and Mr. Thor Krogh, principal of Monterey High School and leader in the inter-racial committee on the Peninsula.

The afternoon session, beginning at two o'clock in the church auditorium, is built on the theme of Our Town. Participants are the Reverend J. Logan, pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Chaplain Richard C. Hertz, of Fort Ord, a student from the Monterey High School, Dr. Margaret Swigart of Pacific Grove, Mrs. Jessie S. Kinloch, deanery president of the National Council of Catholic Women, and Chaplain Stuart C. Haskins of the Monterey Section Naval Base. The council includes in its membership women of all Christian Churches of the Peninsula and works for the betterment of social conditions throughout the area. Election of officers for the coming year will be held.

Mrs. Cranston Meets With Assistants To Plan Bond Campaign

Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, moving rapidly in her plans for the organization of the 7th War Loan Drive, met with a committee composed of representatives from Carmel's women's organizations on Wednesday afternoon to map out the ways and means of the coming drive.

Those who have been named to date on this committee are Mesdames Frank Bell, Howard Clark, C. M. Childers, Louise Grigsby, Alton Walker, C. J. Ryland, D. E. Nixon, Vera Millis, W. F. Halyard, E. W. L. Franklin, Hamilton Peyton, E. P. McMurtry, Helen Getzinger, Saxton Pope, Miss Amy Campbell, and Dr. Helen Field.

"Little Ones Who Didn't Get Away Champ" Is Carman

Among many fanatic anglers who celebrated May First by wandering along the banks of the river Carmel, were S. Crispin and Carman Reis, both of whom returned with the limit—Crispin's the limit in number, Miss Reis with the limit in size. Her catch, which might be lost in a lady's coin purse, was immediately displayed on ice in the Lucky Boy Market.

"When smaller rainbow are taken," chuckles 'Cris', "Carman will get them." His own catch presumably went into a frying pan and ranged in size from—well, big enough to serve, anyhow.

Tokushige Wears The Purple Heart, Wants To Return To Monterey Co.

One of the tough Japanese-American soldiers who smashed through fierce Nazi resistance in Vosges mountains to rescue the Yank Lost Battalion is in the Barnes General Hospital at Vancouver, Washington.

He is Pfc. Jim Tokushige, 25, born and brought up in Salinas, where people have been talking of preventing the return of Japanese Americans. His left arm was shattered by a German machine gun bullet as he packed in a 300 lb. Walkie-Talkie set to maintain communications in the rugged mountain country in which the Germans had trapped the American battalion.

Seniors To Present New Warner Play

The graduating class of Carmel High will present a Senior Play Friday, May 11, at Sunset Auditorium, curtain eight-thirty. They have chosen another three act comedy by Claire Warner, entitled "Senior Problems." The play was written especially for the Seniors and when they read it they like it even better than "That Certain Age" which made quite a hit a few months ago.

The play is a little more serious than the former. The plot is built about a young boy and the difficulties and problems he encounters, trying to become one of a group of Seniors.

This play will be the last offering of the class of '45, nearly the whole class will take part in either acting or producing and Mariquita Derby Brey has consented to direct.

Those in the cast are Jim Jensen, Jo An Thorn, Carolyn Cory, Andrea Del Monte, Gareth Geering, Jim Heisinger, Florita Botts, Claire Warner, Page Leard, Mast Wolfson, Ballard Fish, Eleanore Davis and Dean Rains.

The production staff are Robert Jensen, Douglas Calley, Betsy Roeth, Joan Janda, Ann Pierce and Elizabeth Williamson.

"Out Damned Sign!" Mayor Says It Wasn't His Idea Anyway--Relief In Sight For Bay Rapid Bus Patrons

The man with the suitcase was pretty mad. He told his story, winding up his recital with, "Who does the Mayor think he is, anyway, telling people where to get off at?"

Here, apparently, was a case of The Common Man arrayed against Officialdom, The Pine Cone's cue to rally to the banner of Liberty and Justice.

Bold And Colorful Is Student Exhibit At Carmel Gallery

The Monterey high school exhibit, which opened this last Tuesday and will be on display in the Beardsley Gallery through May 15, is a collection of paintings in water color and tempera, bold in design and brilliant in color. Miss Sophie Harpe's students have vigorously tackled breadth of material from still life studies of sneakers and other school paraphernalia to the romantic atmosphere of circus and ballet; their accurate drawings of plant life are balanced by imaginative decorative studies in the same subject; their work in all cases is a clear statement of their intention, and their directness is fine tribute to the method of their instructor. Scale models of homes and drawings of interiors are also on exhibit and make an excellent demonstration of art applied.

Millicent Slate, Charles Bennett, M. Goblirsch, and Earle de Lappe are represented by a large number of pictures, and the last two named are already junior members of the art association.—B.C.

"I never told anybody where to get off at in my life," protested Mayor P. A. McCreery.

"Aren't you telling them where they can't get off at, and isn't that the same thing?" We wanted to know.

Then we relayed the citizen's story. He'd come back from San Francisco lugging a great-big-heavy-suitcase and arriving in Monterey he took the Bay Rapid Transit to Carmel, pleased to think that the bus stops at a corner handy to his house, and he wouldn't have to lug the suitcase much farther this trip. Then when it came to his corner, the bus sailed right by. The citizen with the suitcase protested. The driver pointed to a sign in the bus which said that henceforth the bus would stop to load and unload passengers at the bus depot only, "By Order of the Mayor of Carmel."

"I didn't have a thing to do with that damn sign," protested his honor. "I didn't know it was up in the bus until people started stopping me on the street, complaining about it."

"The bus was going around stopping just anywhere and everywhere in town where anybody wanted to get out," continued our friend, Mac, "One day I saw them stopping on Ocean Avenue in front of the Bank of Carmel to unload about forty soldiers while traffic piled up behind them on Ocean Avenue up to Mission Street. I got a hold of the representative of the Bay Rapid Transit and arranged—"

Woman's Club Annual Flower Show Monday

The annual Flower Show of the Carmel Woman's Club will be held at the Girl Scout House, Sixth and Lincoln, next Monday, May 7, from 2 to 9.

Miss Flora Hartwell, chairman, in speaking of the event yesterday, said, "Through the floral contributions of members of the club and their interested friends, our flower show last year exceeded in artistic charm our wildest expectation."

"Many persons said this was, in miniature, as charming, varied, and original in design as the big flower shows of the state which have long been Meccas for flower-lovers."

"This success has created in some of us the hope that, in time, the Carmel Flower Show, a civic fete, sponsored by our club, may become an annual festival somewhat comparable in interest of the Bach Festival."

"This may seem an unduly ambitious dream, but we know great oaks have small beginnings."

Contributions from citizens of flower arrangements, cut flowers or plants will be greatly appreciated, Miss Hartwell added. A committee will be at the Girl Scout House on next Sunday afternoon, May 6, and early Monday morning to receive them.

The Handy Man Had A Bone In His Nose, Speaker Tells AAUW

A huge, black native of New Guinea, half of his bushy hair bleached with peroxide, the other half hennaed, and with a six-inch bone thrust through his nose as decoration, reporting to an American Red Cross canteen worker for directions for building a forward-base recreation hut—this was one of her experiences related by Miss Marinora Wilson of San Francisco, who recently returned from eighteen months' service in the Southwest Pacific war area. Miss Wilson spoke to the American Association of University Women meeting at the home of Mrs. Christine Raynsford in Monterey on April 25. Her work took her to principal cities of Australia, to Port Moresby, and as the forces moved forward, over the Owen Stanley mountains, and finally to the Admiralty Islands.

The Red Cross clubs, "down under" are of two kinds: the big, well-equipped—and usually densely crowded—establishments in the cities, where men on leave can safely deposit their valuables, luxuriate in baths and clean clothes, go out to enjoy recreation the city provides, and return to a clean bed—sometimes on the floor—as respite from the months of mud and horror of jungle fighting; and in the forward areas, a canteen housed in a small hut with thatched roof, split bamboo walls, and usually a dirt floor, where men come for doughnuts and soffee, or occasionally iced fruit juices, between their shifts in the foxholes or the bombing missions. In the cities workers were volunteer under direction of a few Red Cross personnel, while in the jungle huts two to half a dozen young women ran a canteen, and were the only white women the soldiers saw for months.

Before the talk by Miss Wilson, members of the association voted to take charge for two evenings a month, instead of one as heretofore, of the Red Cross men's and women's service club in Monterey. They elected as delegates to the non-travel national convention in May Miss Frances Whitehead and Mrs. Margaret Lang, with the president, Miss Harriet Baker, as ex-officio delegate. The state convention in Berkeley was announced for May 19, and the next book section meeting will be a picnic at the home of Mrs. Whitesides at Robles del Rio on May 12.

GOLF

The last nine holes of the Pebble Beach golf links will tell the story as to who are the victors in the first match of the year between the golf teams of Carmel and Monterey High Schools.

In the golf game between the schools Monday, April 30, one foursome completed the eighteen holes with the following results: Carmel's first and second men, Francis Shea and Dick Nicholas took 2½ and 3 points, respectively, while their Monterey opponents captured 2½ and 3 points. The other foursome competing finished only nine holes because darkness began to set in. Carmel boys Ralph Westover and Bill Rissel won 1 point each; the Monterey players, 0. They will finish the last nine Thursday, May 2. The score stands now, Carmel 2½, Monterey 5½. However, if our team wins Thursday's encounter, Carmel will come out victorious, 6½ to 5½.

The Carmel team members have already earned their "block" athletic awards by defeating Pacific Grove 11 to 7 several weeks ago.

A game is scheduled sometime next week with Pacific Grove at the enemies' home course, and May 18 with P. G. at Pebble Beach. At least one more match with Monterey is hoped for by John H. Westover, director of Carmel High School Golf. —Francis Shea.

STUDENTS GO BOWLING

From 5 to 7 every Friday afternoon members of "The Club" go bowling at the Monterey Bowling Alley. Suzita Cecil, who goes over to Monterey with Mrs. Klein, says that about eleven kids went last time, having fun bowling and getting cokes and orange pop at the snack bar there. Mrs. Klein, adviser of "The Club", takes all the students over in her station wagon which usually accommodates them. —Ann Hodgson.

G. A. A. INITIATION

Last Friday the Girls Athletic Association held its initiation for the girls who were to receive their G. A. A. blocks. The girls, Jeanine Viljoen, Diane Tait, Penny Kerr, Adele Thompson, Joanne Gorham, Pat Ferguson, Carol Knapp-Smith, Suzita Cecil and Diana Daniells were dressed in levis, frilly blouses, bobby-socks, and high-heeled shoes. Their hair was supposed to be straight and the members of the G. A. A. printed the letters "G. A. A." in lipstick on the girls' faces. The girls were made to do stunts in front of the student body during the noon hour.

According to the members of the association, the initiation turned out very well.

—Alice Morehouse.

ALUMUS HOME

Stanley Ewig, class of '45, returned "vet" of eight weeks in the San Diego Boot Camp, visited his many friends in Carmel last week end. Students remarked that he had lost a lot of weight, and also lots of his black curly hair.

Committee Reports Show Successful Year For Clubwomen

Summarizing the Carmel Woman's Club activities during the past year, reports were given by the chairman of each committee at a meeting held at the club rooms on Monday, April 30. The afternoon opened with a picnic atmosphere as members enjoyed box lunches and coffee served by the club.

At the request of president Mrs. Alton Walker, the names of the new board of directors were presented by Mrs. Leon Fisher, Miss Kate M. Firmin, and Miss Winslow and unanimously accepted. Their names will be announced later.

Mrs. H. S. Upjohn was asked to conduct the annual disposal of the club's books, the funds obtained to be used for the purchase of new books for the club library. Mrs. William Heathorne, as librarian, reported that she and her assistant, Mrs. Harry Nye, had found unusual interest in the books available. Members praised the loan system they had inaugurated.

Mrs. D. E. Nixon regretted her inability to continue as recording secretary during the coming year. Her duties will be taken over by Mrs. G. W. Getsinger.

Miss Amy Campbell had to show for hours of untiring work a treasury report which reveals the club's financial condition to be the best in years. As usual, funds were set aside for the purchase of U. S. Treasury bonds.

Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, vice-pres. and general program chairman, and Mrs. Upjohn, book section program chairman, were commended for the caliber of the programs which they have arranged throughout the year.

Corresponding secretary, Miss Amy Comings, and Mrs. Saxton Pope, director at large and revision chairman, gave brief reports of their departments.

Mrs. Verne Skillman, second vice-president and membership chairman, reported on the more than double attendance which prevailed this year, commending the spirit of sociability and sincere welcome extended to new members which has promoted it. She extended this hospitable spirit farther by inviting others interested to call her at 775-R.

Mrs. E. B. Grigg was commended for her handling of the bridge section, and the devoted work of Miss Flora Hartwell, who has done so much to stimulate interest in the garden section of which she is

PTA, Air Corps Corporal Donate To Scholarship

At the annual meeting of the Otto Bardarson Scholarship Fund Board at Sunset School Monday night some interesting gifts were announced, with checks designated for the purchase of War Bonds. Miss Clara Kellogg, chairman, presided, with Peter Mawdsley as the permanent secretary-treasurer, and seventeen directors in attendance.

A check for $100 was gratefully received from the Carmel Parent Teachers Association, increasing the fund to $1758.78, which is largely invested in War Bonds.

Among the many gifts recently received was one from funds provided by Corporal John Plank, a former Sunset pupil, who is now overseas with the Army Air Forces. In a recent letter to his mother, Mrs. Eugene Watson, he suggested that part of a check which he enclosed be used for some educational purpose, and since he had been an admirer of the late Otto Bardarson it seemed fitting that a $50 War Bond be given to the fund created in the latter's memory.

John Plank left Carmel after his fourth grade at Sunset School, and he enlisted at the end of his freshman year at Harvard. "I have had a part of my own education," John wrote, "and the balance is provided for, so I want to help someone else get his."

Newly elected to the Board of Directors of the Fund is Leo A. Harris, Principal of the Carmel High School and Superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District. Mr. Harris succeeds J. W. Getsinger, and serves with Mrs. Howard E. Clark and the Rev. Carel Hulsewe on the scholarship committee of the Bardarson Fund. Ernest Morehouse has also recently become a member of the Board.

Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne, publicity chairman, thanked Mrs. Cranston for her well executed Pine Cone articles, Miss Hartwell for her handling of garden section publicity, and Mrs. Upjohn for her promptness in handling of advance notices. She also commented appreciatively up the newspaper cooperation which has been extended to her.

CHICO: Comes from Spanish for "little". This was part of Rancho Chico, a far from "little" Mexican grant.

Legion Auxiliary Plans Poppy Day

Poppies to honor America's dead of two World Wars will be worn in Carmel on Saturday, May 26th, Mrs. Charles Childers, President of Carmel Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced today. Everyone in the city will be able to buy the flowers of remembrance from the many volunteer workers from the Auxiliary who will be on the streets all during the day.

The poppies are made by hand of crepe paper on the pattern of the wild poppy of Flanders. They have been ordered from hospitals where disabled veterans made them under the direction of the California Department of the Auxiliary. Making these poppies has helped these veterans keep their minds and fingers occupied, causing the otherwise tedious months to pass more quickly and at the same time furnishing the men with a small livelihood.

"Out Damn Sign!" The Mayor Says It Wasn't His Idea

ed for a meeting in my office between him and Allen Knight. (Ed's Note: Councilman Knight as Police Commissioner is highly involved in traffic matters) and we told him his bus drivers couldn't just stop anywhere to load and unload—I've seen them stop in the middle of Ocean Avenue Hill. We were to have another meeting and decide where the bus could stop and pick up passengers and let them off without snarling up traffic, and until then the bus wasn't to load or unload except at the bus depot. Then the first thing I know people were stopping me on the street about the sign in the bus. 'By order of the Mayor of Carmel'—Me and Himmler!"

"And now what?"
"And now I'm going to try and get a meeting with the representative of the Bay Rapid Transit and work out those bus stops—and get him to take down that sign."

All this on Tuesday. Thursday the Mayor had this to report: He'd telephoned the Bay Rapid Transit and the Representative was in San Francisco, so the Mayor instructed the representative of the Representative to take down the sign, and the Mayor says that as soon as Representative No. 1 is available, there will be a meeting and the bus stops will be worked out—early next week he thinks.

A call, put in over the police phone, brought the Carmel Ambulance and rescue crew to the scene, but McPherson had already been brought ashore by two unidentified service men, after several attempts had been made by others.

Impressed with Highlands

Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien, despite the extravagant beauty of their own Honolulu, were much impressed with the scenery offered by the Carmel environs during their recent week end as guests of Capt. and Mrs. Patrick S. Bilks of Carmel Highlands.

Mrs. O'Brien, known professionally as Eileen McCann O'Brien, is editor of the magazine, Paradise of the Pacific, which is published in Honolulu, and is here to cover the San Francisco Conference.

James McKillop

A career of outstanding public service was finished with the death Tuesday of James Ronald McKillop, 65, who was known to many of Carmel through his superintendency of the Monterey high school, which he had maintained until last year, when he accepted a post as teacher of Spanish at the Carmel high school.

A native of Coaticook, Quebec, he had given his life to educational work in this country and in the Philippine Islands. His interest in church affairs was keen, and during the last war he served in France as regimental YMCA secretary. In civic affairs he was active in Red Cross, USO, the History and Art Association, and the recreation commission.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel Taylor McKillop, three sons, Keith D. McKillop, Salinas; Kenneth A. McKillop, Fresno; and Donald R. McKillop, Monterey; and a daughter, Mrs. Nelson B. Sewell of Salinas. His brother, William D. McKillop, lives in Honolulu.

Services were held at Paul's chapel on Thursday afternoon; they were conducted by Rev. C. L. Trawin. Interment was in El Carmelo cemetery.

Maj. Weiser Returning

His wife, Fordre, and small daughter are making their home with Mrs. Weiser's parents, Chief of Police and Mrs. Roy Fraties.

Science Discussed

Miss Beth Morgan was hostess to twelve members of La Collecta at the home of Mrs. D. E. Nixon on Wednesday afternoon. At meeting opened by President Mrs. Orle Holm, Mrs. Floyd Smith presented several interesting articles on cancer, blood plasma, and the nursing profession which were read and discussed by the group. Miss Morgan presided over the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Elmer Douglas, Santa Fe and Second Streets, on May 16.

Mrs. Turner Home

Mrs. Richmond K. Turner, who has been in the bay area for the past ten days, arrived back in Carmel yesterday.

Succulents Subject Of Discussion At Woman's Club Meet

The members of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club were given a most illuminating discussion of succulents by Mrs. Hilda Duarte Brown of Monterey on Friday, April 20.

The meeting was held at the charming English home of Mrs. T. F. Baxter. The hostess had created a harmonious atmosphere for the subject by the decorations. The guests lingered near the entrance of the house to observe the details of a large eagle made of sedums. Mrs. Baxter's artist-gardener at her extensive Monterey Peninsula Club residence had grown it in a flat three by three feet square. It is a perfect representation of our national bird. This will be one of the attractions at the Club's Annual Flower Show next Monday at the Girl Scout house.

In the spacious living room there was a charming arrangement of a tall, branching succulent blossom in orange tones surrounded by the leaves of the aloe. In a low copper bowl there was a large flat succulent of the sempervivum variety, which with copper-colored aloe leaves gave a lovely, decorative note to the room.

The growing interest of home-gardeners in the cultivation of succulents was shown by the unusually large attendance at the meeting. This is due in part to their demanding little care.

Mrs. Brown has studied succulents for fifteen years. She read a delightful and comprehensive paper on succulents, their origin, diversity and culture being discussed in a most enlightening manner.

We learned that the term "succulent" embraces cacti and sedums, as well as plants usually recognized by that name.

There are many common succulents which are quite indifferent to soil and care, but Mrs. Brown brought specimens of very rare and curious varieties which must have much sunshine, sandy soil, but very little moisture. An occasional drink is needed, but damp soil will cause them to rot. Mrs. Brown has offered to display some of her rarest specimens at the Flower Show next Monday.

The magazines of the Cacti and Succulent Society to which Mrs. Brown belongs, and catalogues from firms dealing exclusively in these plants, created great interest when passed around. An informal forum was carried on during which questions were answered.

Succulents grow easily from slips. Even one leaf will take root. Mrs. Brown will bring many cuttings to be sold at the Plant Booth next Monday.

For novelty and interest no meeting of the Garden Section has rivaled this one.

Current History, Painting Classes Prove Popular

The discussion centered around the events of the first meeting of the San Francisco Conference at the class on "Today's Problems" at Sunset, Tuesday evening, Dr. Blanchard Steeves selecting pertinent material from the many reports available on the Conference.

The enrollment in the class is rapidly increasing so that it may be necessary to move it to a larger room.

The guest speaker for the meeting Tuesday, May 15, will be Mr. Eben Whittlesey, Carmel Attorney. He will talk on an important phase of the peace plan, and the latter part of the period will be open for discussion of problems raised by his address.

The class meets in Room No. 3, Sunset School every Tuesday evening. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and you may enter the class at any one of the meetings.

The Painting and Sketching class has been doing some very outstanding work, according to Mr. Lee F. Randolph, instructor. The instruction has included still life painting and sketching and also some very worth while sessions on portrait work from living models. With the coming of summer weather the class plans to go outside for landscape work.

Mr. Howard Benre and his high school class in shop have built a number of folding easels for the use of the Art class.

The painting class meets every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the Sunset lunch room, and will continue through the summer.

FASCISM AND THE FUTURE

"Disintegration is the only means by which a social order ever comes to the end of its time. The fact that the Nazi system is falling apart rather than surrender intact means that our side is superseding it in history." The foregoing is a portion of the quotation from Samuel Grafton's "I'd Rather Be Right" with which Dr. Robert Brady opened his talk on "Fascism and the Future" before the Carmel Adult Forum last week. Dr. Brady is professor of economics at the University of California in Berkeley and lived in Germany in 1935 and 1936 when Nazism was at its height.

"If what war is doing is pulverizing Fascism," continued Dr. Brady, "if we are waging a social war, then certainly there is considerable point in asking what that social war is."

The speaker said that while in Germany he learned that by the use of codes similar to those of the NRA (of which they apparently had intimate knowledge), the government was trying to put across a corporative economy, a sort of compulsory cartel system. This is further explained, said Dr. Brady, in the book "The Nazi Economic System" by Otto Nathan, in which the author states that when the Nazis came into power they took over a vast and complicated web of interlocking trade organizations and cartels, dating from 1873 in most cases, and dominated by giant trusts. The cartels had become so powerful that they were able to tell whom to produce what, when and where. Dr. Brady defined a cartel as any kind of agreement worked out between two or more businesses for eliminating all or a portion of competition between them, by means of price control, division of markets, etc.

The Nazis made no fundamental changes in this huge set-up, declared Dr. Brady, they only streamlined and modernized it and established tighter control at the top. But they lost no time in completely destroying all popular organizations, including labor and consumer groups. Nathan states that now Hitler has a large popular following which he may or may not be able to control. "The author ends his book," said the speaker, "by stating that under Hitler the system is capitalism gone totalitarian."

The second book referred to by Dr. Brady is "The Rest of Your Life" by Leo Cherne, which presents a very unfavorable post-war picture. The author foresees two or three years of inflation with high unemployment in many areas due to demobilization of the armed forces and of some of the war industries. Following that, according to Dr. Brady, Cherne sees nothing to prevent a catastrophe as bad as that of 1929 or worse, and he considers it entirely possible that given a situation of major breakdown, mass unemployment and popular protest, we will end up with further restrictions of the democratic system and within a few years we may find ourselves the "residual legacies of the Nazis." "Cherne says in effect," stated the speaker, "that we in this country have fought throughout the world what is for the rest of the world a double-faced war, an international war and a social war. At the same time forces at home have not worked to carry out the dominating philosophy of the New Deal—to broaden the base of wider participation in our economic life. Returning soldiers will feel that the great betrayal was the failure to do anything on the domestic scene."

Friedrich Hayek's "The Road to Feudalism", the third book considered by Dr. Brady, maintains that feudalism, socialism, communism, fascism, national socialism and planning are interchangeable, according to the speaker, and he commented, "That is exactly the argument, minus fascism, that I would expect to come out of Berlin." Dr. Brady further asserted that the book contends in effect, "We must not make any planning efforts because anything that circumscribes the individual is hell-bent for fascism."

At this point Dr. Brady condemned the practice of attaching slogans indiscriminately. "Never," he said, "has there been a time when popular education is more called for." This is particularly true the speaker emphasized, in the matter of racial problems. The intolerance displayed by some individuals and groups toward the Japanese-American citizen is the sort of thing which in Germany led to prison camps and atrocities. "Everybody who holds these racial intolerances is very apt to pick up easily the rest of the Nazi credo," he declared. "The kind of intolerance that moves people to action that strikes at the roots of popular society is always fascist."

Dr. Brady defined Fascism: "It is the location of control in a group which sees as a condition to the success of its control the destruction of the machinery of, and ultimately the belief in and the sentiment for, democratic institutions." The speaker continued, "The Fascist-minded person is one whose objections and whose methods for implementation of those objections are anti-democratic."

In the question period that followed Dr. Brady's talk he was asked, "How can we avoid depression and unemployment?" His reply was, "I am absolutely certain that we cannot avoid it by changing nothing and resting on our oars. We cannot possibly avoid a very high level of national planning. Planning should not mean regimentation. I think of planning as using your head and doing it systematically to solve any kind of problem."

Answering a question, "Is there any evidence that the government has started planning?" Dr. Brady said, "The George Bill contains a most unusual clause: 'The Director of the Bureau of the Budget shall be prepared to tell the Government how to spend whatever amount it should spend and the amount required to offset any decline in economic activity.' Meaning that if there were in sight a five per cent decline in employment it would be the duty of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget to learn that as soon as possible from the research services and then if nothing is being done, it would be his business to tell Congress what legislation it should pass authorizing what public works or what aid to farmers or what to encourage in business, to expand airways or railroads,—i.e., to take whatever action should be taken to cause increase in employment to offset the decline. The Bureau of the Budget has got to know about every single American industry, its production, its markets, its investment policies, etc., to be able to give this advice."

In introducing the speaker, Martin Flavin said that colors are so mixed nowadays that probably any audience in any part of this country and most of the other countries might be described as fascist. "The only way to be certain which side you are on is to look over your shoulder and see which side is chasing you."

A MASQUE OF REASON

By Robert Frost

This new poem by Robert Frost, published on the occasion of his seventieth birthday, is a literary event of major importance. The extent of its departure from the poet's earlier work will startle many readers; they will find a challenging freshness of thought and theme but no loss of the intensity of feeling or the technical skill they have rightly come to expect from America's foremost poet. 2.00

The author holds that it isn't the years that matter but our relation to them; that life begins at any time. THE BROKEN PITCHER

By Naomi Gilpatrick

THE BROKEN PITCHER is a story with overtones of horror and disaster—psychological horror—dealing with the love lives of four women and two men, one of whom, the idol of all four women, has long been dead. Few writers have treated the relation of mother and daughter as keenly as Miss Gilpatrick or brought forth a story, however thrilling with suspense, so ultimately innocent—This novel won the Avery Hopwood Major Fiction Award. 2.50

Ryukyu Landing Third D Day For Pvt. Bill Yerkes

By Sgt. John Thornburn,
Army Combat Correspondent,
with the 27th Infantry Division on an assault ship.

Private First Class William D. Yerkes of Carmel landed with the Appleknocker regiment of the famed 27th Infantry Division in its initial assault on an island of the Ryukyu Group, 375 miles from the Japanese mainland.

The smash at the Ryukyus, a key point in the vital communication center of the enemy's direction of his forces in the western Pacific, marks the third D-Day for William.

Prior to this operation, Bill Yerkes participated with his organization in the establishing of a beachhead in the Marshall Islands and in the conquest of Saipan in the Marianas.

A surgical technician with the Clearing Station evacuating combat casualties from the front lines to rear area hospitals, Bill assists the surgeon performing surgical operations in a field operating room. He received his training in General Hospitals in the Hawaiian Islands, after entering the service in October of 1942, and has served twenty-eight months overseas. He is entitled to wear the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with three campaign stars.

Bill has an appetite for Army chow that outclasses all competition in his organization, but always has the misfortune of never getting enough to eat. Recently steak was served aboard ship and Bill moaned, "I've got the smallest steak handed out in the chow line and I protest such discrimination!"

Bill is probably the most consistent champion of the desirability of living in Carmel ever seen west of San Francisco. He can wear down the most rabid Florida booster.

The closest shave Bill ever had in combat occurred on Saipan while he was assisting on a surgical operation and the enemy got the range of the Clearing Station with his artillery. He's still shuddering. Bill's constant dream is again taking hiking and fishing trips in the Santa Lucia Range.

Private First Class Yerkes is the son of Mrs. Carol Yerkes, living at Junipero and Second Street in Carmel. His brother, Bud Yerkes, is seeing combat service on a Navy Aircraft carrier.

RED + NEWS

By MARY DEKKER

Attention is called to the new radio program, "The Road Ahead" which the Army, Navy, and American Red Cross is presenting weekly over the Blue Network on Wednesdays from 6:00-6:30 P. M. PWT. The series is designed to promote better understanding between civilians and returning casualties of war.

The programs originate from a different U. S. Military Hospital each week. Participants are the wounded men themselves, assisted by famous stars of the entertainment world, among them Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. "The Road Ahead" provides a platform for the casualties to tell the people back home of their outlook for the future and to speak their minds on the reception and treatment they hope to encounter in civilian life. Of interest are the on-the-spot reports on the work of military medicine and on the reconditioning facilities and methods in Army and Navy Hospitals and convalescent centers.

The Nurse's Aide Corps is in dire need for any Nurse's Aides holding certificates. Both transfer and inactive Aides are urged to report to Headquarters for emergency assignment.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Chapter was held at the Church of the Wayfarer, Wednesday, April 25th. Miss Helen Heavey, Chapter Chairman, conducted the meeting. Reports were given by the following committee Chairmen: Fred Mylar, Ambulance; Miss Leslie King, Home Service; Paul Whitman, War Fund Drive; Mr. John Abernethy, Housing Trust; Miss Elizabeth Kpnas-ton, Nurse Recruitment; Col. George Stuart, Disaster Relief; Mrs. Paul Low, Nurse's Aides; Mrs. R. R. Wallace, Camp and Hospital; Mrs. Buntie B. Thomas, Production; Mrs. Robinson Jeffers, Staff Assistants; Mrs. A. M. Allan, surgical Dressings; Mrs. Bernard Schulte, Gray Ladies; Mrs. Pat Hudgins, Public Information; Mrs. Hamilton Peyton, Junior Red Cross; Miss Alice Cresson, Milk Fund; Miss Hope Hasty, Treasurer.

Surgical dressing workers are urgently needed at the Carmel Red Cross Headquarters on Dolores between 7th and 8th. There are approximately 75,000 dressings on hand to be made and more arriving next month. This is an obligation none of us should overlook. Plan the hours you can give for surgical dressings first. Now is the time they are needed and now is the time to respond with every minute you can arrange to spare.

The men in the Fort Ord Hospital are making lots of good looking belts but must depend on you for the buckles. Please bring your old belt buckles to your local Red Cross headquarters.

The Chapter still needs sewing machines. They will be called for, kept in excellent condition and returned to you when you need them. Call Carmel 2100.

Mrs. R. R. Wallace, chairman of Camp and Hospital, wishes to thank the people who have already given furniture which has made such a difference to the enlisted men in their recreation rooms. She hopes that more thoughtful people will notify the Red Cross to call for any usable furnishings they can spare. Everything can be used to good advantage.

"Between Shining Crests of Glory"

A BOOK REVIEW

BY ELISE DECELLES BEATON

Biography of a Cathedral, by Robert Gordon Anderson, The Living Story of Man's Most Beautiful Creation and of the Pageant that Led to Notre Dame.

The story of Notre Dame of Paris begins with the statement, "The Cathedral was a magnificent gesture, the noblest, perhaps, ever made by man, upflung in pride in himself, entreary to the unknown, in fear and delight, then arrested forever against the sky . . ." "The Cathedral too was a dream of what Heaven might be, made visible with stone forest-aisle and sunset pane."

The author says that the biography must go farther back than any corner-stone laying or consecration. "The Cathedral's biography has to do with the dawn of the world." He chose Notre Dame at Paris from among all the beautiful Cathedrals, because "in that long chain of religion and race, this one shows not one missing link. The dolmen stones of history's dawn were used as Druid altars. The Romans appropriated them for Jupiter. In turn, all these great dolmen roofs and altar stones and the building blocks of the pagan temple went into old Saint Etienne of Paris Isle which preceded the earliest, the first Notre Dame. Then, when these two old churches came down, these stones went into the Cathedral of Notre Dame we see and touch today."

The book unfolds the story of Christian civilization as embodied in the Cathedral, in Paris and France, and the men who built or prepared the way for it.

We travel, too, to the Near East, and re-live the familiar Bible stories that are immortalized in the very architecture of the Cathedral.

A pre-view of the stupendous pageant of history related in the 484 pages is glimpsed in the following paragraph from the "Proscenium," or introduction:

"And what a succession of secular scenes the Saints, through the centuries, have since looked down on from niche and window: The son of Henry the Second of England being buried, a stranger in a strange land, under the high altar. Saint Louis bringing in, with a glittering procession, he himself humbly barefoot, his relic of the Crown of Thorns and the True Cross. Philip the Fair with iron hoofbeat riding down that nave to send his armor crashing down before Our Lady. The excited chattering as the first parliament convened. Scottish Mary petitioning the Mary in whose name the Cathedral was built, for love and life, and, too, a revival of the sacred drama, which meant so much to her storm-tossed heart, in the dour churches of her own Edinburgh. Napoleon, heels a-click, bursting in from the Archbishop's Palace to be crowned. Revolutionary and Commune mobs racing through, with their pikes, their cries savage above the death rattle of the Old Order. The martyr priest praying for forgiveness for his murderers, as had his King and the Saint Stephen, by whose doorway he lay on stones as red as the deepest crimsons in the great rose above. No more articulate are the professional guides, the news-vendors outside, no more vocal the gorgeously chasubled priests, the singing choirboys, the rolling organ up in the violet dusk of the west loft, than these history-drenched stones themselves. For him who has ears, they will unlock their tongues."

From the seizing of Paris by Caesar's legions and the building of a Temple to Jupiter by the Paris boat-men, the tide of the story sweeps on through the centuries. There is much history, but never heavy, always moving swiftly along, full of pulsating life, vivid color, ringing sounds. Rome becomes Christianized; Attila and his Huns pour into Europe; Genevieve saves Paris; Rome falls and "the whole world still echoes with the crash of it;" Clovis conquers many peoples, but Genevieve shuts him out of Paris

DEAD SEA

They call it dead, this tortured sea

That curls its lip in broken lull

Upon the shore with slackened haste;

No cry of plover nor of gull

Gleam in the fevered gloom,

The sea is startled into light

And captures the starlight bloom.

REVIEWS

until he becomes baptized; the great Abbeys become self-sustaining cities; the candles for the Dark Ages are lighted on Mount Cassino; many famous figures come to life in scenes of charm and color down to 1239, A. D. and St. Louis.

The march of history is paralleled by the construction of the Cathedral, "the meeting place of God with men, the library for the unlettered, the cradle of guilds and parliaments." We hear the war cries, the chants, the minstrel songs of the past. History comes alive through the colors of the author's magic words.

The book comes at an especially opportune time, when France is again struggling to her feet. The author reminds us: "France has not always been at the top through three thousand years. She has been conquered before as she was conquered by Rome. She has had her debacles before when rulers were weak, generals inefficient, when the whole strength appeared to have gone out of her. She has known troughs of despair between her shining crests of glory. From the sixth and fifth centuries B. C., when she dominated Europe, down to the Second World War, she has been several times on the verge of annihilation, only to recover. This is the difference between France and all other lands. They have known from one to five centuries of glory, then have burned themselves out. Times innumerable France has risen."

The final chapter takes place in Paris, 1937, when the fifteenth century Mystery Play, the sacred story of the life and death of Jesus, was presented on the square in front of Notre Dame. It was played by famous actors, actresses, singers and dancers from the theatres and Opera of Paris. The words were a modern French translation of the old French of Arnould de Greban, of Villon's time. I was privileged to be in the audience twice that week when thousands of spectators were thrilled by the pictured struggle between good and evil, and the final triumph of good, symbolized by the glow of light that blazed from the flaming windows, and the pealing glory of the great bells.

The author, Robert Gordon Anderson, with his charming wife and pretty teen-age daughter, stayed at the same small Paris Hotel that was my home that summer. Mr. Anderson began his book in Paris, 1937, and spent most of the following years in completing it. The Andersons kindly invited me to their family table, and included me in delightful walks through old Paris. Mr. Anderson, through years of study in Paris, knew so much about every building and ruined Roman wall, that my enjoyment of Paris was enriched and deepened by his interesting stories.

After reading the Biography of a Cathedral, I feel as though I have just returned from a trip to Paris, and to beautiful Notre Dame.

STILL GOING STRONG AT SIXTY-FIVE

In "On My Own," by "Life Begins at Forty" Walter Pitkin, journalist, psychologist, educator, the author is more journalist than psychologist and educator—hence seldom dull. The book purports to be an autobiography and contains much that is amusing, much that is trivial, and a little that is thought provoking. Most worth-while are the passages devoted to Europe as Pitkin saw it when he was "on his own" as a young man trying to find a country where the climate would favor his infected ears and where the economic situation was such that he could make a living. His student-proletarian-eye-view of Germany, Italy and France from 1899 to 1906 results in some observations which explain in part why Europe is as it is today, and give rise to the question, "What in the name of heaven can one do about it?"

Other passages that make good reading are those about Woodrow Wilson, which furnish a refreshing antidote to the rosy eye wash about the great phrase maker that has been inundating the country during the past year. —WILMA COOK.

Meet Jointly

On the evening of Wednesday, April 25, the various groups of the Church of the Wayfarer, who have been studying the countries and islands of Southeast Asia and the South Pacific, gathered for an exchange of facts and ideas concerning their study. The program, arranged by Mrs. D. E. Nixon, centered on peace with the thought of doing honor to the peace conference in San Francisco.

The stories of French Indo-China, the Netherlands East Indies, the Malay states, Thailand, Burma, and the Philippines were resumed by Mesdames Alice Rigdon, Wilma Kocher, C. P. Irwin, W. W. Allen, Helen Clark Cranston, and B. Atlee Taylor. The junior contribution to the evening was the play, The Tiger's Mistake, presented by four members of the JOY club. They were Skipper Lloyd, Wayne Gunn, Robert Gunn, and Gene Mizelle. An entertaining quiz staged by Frieda Gunn followed. Group singing was ably led by Mrs. Mark Penoyer, with Miss Naomi Fletcher at the piano, and was followed by "Poem on Peace" and "Hymn to Peace," read by the Misses Joan Penoyer and Mary Gregory.

On display was a collection of pictures, art work, hand craft, from these various countries with a group of articles captured from the German and Japanese which were the contribution of Mesdames Alice Rigdon, C. P. Irwin, D. E. Nixon, Blanchard Steeves, Charlotte Morgan, Helen Clark Cranston, Harry Beck, and Grace Howden, Miss Agnes Williston, Robert Gunn, Ellis Jump and Skipper Lloyd.

Guests and members joined in an enjoyable social hour with Mrs. Grace Howden and Mrs. Harry Beck presiding at the tea tables. These had been most effectively decorated with red, white, and blue flowers and candles arranged as a centerpiece by Mrs. W. W. Allen, and Mrs. B. Atlee Taylor who were in charge of decorations and refreshments.

Camping Party

"The Gang"—and that is the name by which the crowd of good fellows that study under Mr. Howard Timbers are best known in Church of the Wayfarer Sunday School circles—were taken by their leader on an overnight excursion into Carmel Valley last week end. Mr. Timbers and his crew staked out just this side of San Clemente Dam and soon things were running smoothly with staffs handling the all important matter of cooking and the equally necessary duty of cleaning up. The party, which started on Friday afternoon, broke up Saturday evening after a fine day of swimming.

"The gang" includes Timothy Cass, John and Kendall Kirtley, John Lodmell, Skipper Lloyd, Dale Siemons, James Beck, Robert Gunn, Jimmy Faye, and Bobby Cecil.

Inf. Badge For Lt. Baumgartner

First Lt. Roland A. Baumgartner, whose wife Vivian L. Baumgartner lives in Carmel, has been cited by the 87th Mountain Regiment of the 10th Mountaineer Division and awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge for participation in combat against the enemy on the Fifth Army front in Italy.

Old Curiosity Shop

On Wednesday and Thursday all those in Carmel who enjoy fine old things had an opportunity of seeing a variety of rare pieces—from silver to Paisley shawls—that were on exhibit at the All Saints' Church Old Curiosity Shop. The shop was open between eleven and four in the afternoon with a luncheon served both days. Added atmosphere was provided by the tasteful decorations of Miss Flora Stewart, who served under the general chairmanship of Mrs. C. J. F. Jarvis assisted by Mrs. W. H. Hargrave.

The following list of members were hostesses during the day: Mesdames C. J. F. Jarvis, W. H. Hargrave, V. P. Millis, J. L. Sloat, D. D. MacGregor, Whitney Palache, Leon Fisher, R. R. Wallace, Bruce Bacon, W. W. Wheeler, W. N. Dekker, W. E. Pulham, E. H. Ewig, W. H. Satchell, W. C. Nielsen, and Peter Mawdsley.

Those who served lunch were Mesdames F. E. Bumgarner, P. E. Holt, F. J. Colby, G. M. Burton, H. H. Henry, E. B. Schenck, John Carnelson, C. P. Doane, J. B. Shepherd, E. L. Smith, J. M. Bondreau, H. G. Drew, H. C. Page, G. H. Burnette, and B. G. Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gottfried, whose home has been in Los Gatos for several years, are again in Carmel, making their home with Mrs. Gottfried's father, Mr. Fred Bechdolt. Both are well known here, where Mrs. Gottfried had grown up and where her husband has long been engaged in the building trade. Both served as charter members of the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary, and will be especially welcomed by fellow members as they return to the ranks.

Also at the Bechdolt home last week were Mr. Bechdolt's grand daughter, Miss Nancy Hale, a student at Dominican College, and her school friend, Miss Marcella del Prado of Mexico City. Miss del Prado left on Sunday, but Miss Hale will remain for several weeks.

Entertains 5th Grade

After the show the cast returned to the Hildebrand home for a supper party.

Collectors of porcelain will find PARSONS' Antiques a veritable treasure trove this week, for among the latest pieces to arrive are: some choice French porcelain cups and saucers, an early English pair of cups and saucers in pink and gold and white with floral design, and an early Meissen tea service (three-piece) in deep yellow with a Dubonnet pastoral scene and a spout in the shape of an animal's head. Another item which caught my fancy was a Dresden bonbon dish elaborately fashioned with a Cupid and exquisite rosebuds which stand out from the main part of the dish. And the Sheffield silver for which Parsons' is justly famous has several new additions: a beautiful old tea service, single tea pots, and an old Sheffield frame holding three English crystal decanters. At all times desirable gifts, they are especially so now with Mother's Day approaching.

THE CYNTHIANN has innumerable wonderful things, all sorts of grand ideas for gifts! Adorable glazed chintz aprons with yoked waistlines and flouncey little skirts, and some of them have additional matching yardage for kitchen curtains and cupboard curtains. One has a pale yoke with a flounce of pearl gray in which are peach flowers, others in other colours have pretty floral patterns of all kinds, and then there are pastels and solid coloured aprons in all patterns both for men and for women... cover-all aprons. And even some cute little ones for children. One bright red one has a green patterned flounce skirt with a matching pot-holder! And additional matching yardage for those aforementioned curtains. Tony Sarg's clever place mats of handblocked woven material have just arrived too... there is a charm and an imagination in these gay designs: a coach and four, quaint locomotive and passenger trains, hunting prints and Punch and Judy shows and four other delightful designs. The clever motifs also may be had in yardage to make up in napkins and curtains. And these are but a few of the many exceptional gifts to be found at The Cynthiann.

Some clever new handbags of Mexican design in a nice durable felt have the spotlight at THE DISCOVERY SHOP this week. They are shaped like the hanging purses of the Andes, serving the purpose of the "chivas" or moneybags of Tierra Caliente, and are both novel and exciting. Around the bags are braided materials and handloomed Mexican patterns in any number of colour combinations: one especially nice one in black with horizontal braids of red, green and yellow; others in purple, in Kelly green, deep royal blue and red are equally goodlooking. Also featured at the moment are silver jewelry both domestic and Mexican, Mexican shopping bags of bright straw, a variety of cocktail napkins, and any number of place mats of straw and of woven cotton-type materials.

In toiletries and cosmetics, WOODS' Dolores Pharmacy offers some marvelous gift suggestions. Probably the loveliest of all is the new Ann Haviland line which includes sachets, colognes, perfume, bath oil and dusting powder all beautifully and daintily packaged in the following fragrances: "Perhaps," Lily of the Valley, Wood Violet and Carnation. The cases are white and the colour predominantly a pale green for decors. These, as well as the following I shall mention, are delightful to behold and fragrant in essence. The Chantilly line is in pink, sweetly wrapped with pink bows and labels, and the Milkmaid toiletries include cosmetics of all kinds all tastefully packaged in porcelain type jars and fagons with sprigs of blue flowers and pale blue bows. Useful and beautiful aids to woman's loveliness, these toiletries are finding their place in more and more homes today.

ANNA KATZ has some adorable two piece summer fabric dresses in a wealth of perfect materials! A non-crushable linen which is very reasonably priced comes in warm brown and in black, that always smart style with the shirt-maker collar line enabling you to have changes in costume merely by adding a blouse, or by placing a stunning pin at the lapel. Then there are two piece chanting seersuckers in nice stripes of different colours with white background, some dainty French gingham and French batistes and chambrays with any number of pretty patterns from which to select your summer dresses. All the finest lighter weight frocks may be found at Anna Katz' Dress Shop these days, just right for Mother, and for yourself as well.

THE SILVER THIMBLE offers so many grand Mother's Day suggestions that all tastes and all needs should be amply fulfilled. To begin, they have really gorgeous bed and boudoir jackets, quilted ones of soft rayon with all manner of pretty floral patterns, and plain ones in rayon and rayon satin without the quilting for less cool times, and smooth silky pastels trimmed with lace. Then one can find too all sorts of negligees and house robes for all purposes, nightgowns of all styles and materials, challis and cotton gowns, rayon and rayon satin gowns with dainty lacetrim. Sweet - smelling little sachets make nice gifts for drawers and linen closets... these they have in heart shapes and a cunning hat shape. Expected: some remarkably fine handstitched antelope gloves.

One gift which brings the greatest glow of happiness to a woman is the soft luxury of a fur coat. Regardless of whether it is lightweight Canadian ermine-sides in deep and glossy brown, a magnificent and breathtaking Russian ermine, a warm-toned muskrat in light shades of soft gray, or any of the desirable and popular coats of medium priced furs, a fur means a great deal to womankind. The glossy smoothness of the pelt next to one's face feels so richly warm in cold weather, and certain furs as collars add stature and beauty to coats both in winter and in summer. FRANK LOUDA JR., The Furrier, has these collars in fox and in wolf in addition to their fine fur coats, and any woman would be proud to receive such a thoughtful, handsome, present.

Those grand leisure jackets to be found at HEARN LTD. have several new members in their midst of late. One of the new arrivals is a brown cashmere with handstitching, three button style with three pockets... a perfect weight and a perfect tone for all beige and tawny slacks. Another is a light blue herringbone in the same style, a similar tan herringbone and any mixture of tweeds in small checks or solids. The leisure jacket is the true backbone of any man's wardrobe and Hearn Ltd. has all styles to offer you.

No shortage on shorts at DEREK RAYNE, Carmel's Shop For Men! Mr. Rayne proudly informed me today that you men can get good white broadcloth shorts with snap fasteners in sizes 30 to 40. And this is good news because up until only a short (not intentional pun) while ago, shorts were almost impossible to get!

Newly Weds Feted

Miss Clara Taft of Carmelo Road invited friends to meet her niece, the recent bride of Lt. Donald Campbell Sleeper, at a cocktail party at her home last Saturday afternoon. Miss Violet Whitney, and Miss Ellen O. Sullivan assisted the hostess in preparations for the thirty guests attending and Mr. Lyn Williams presided over the making of cocktails.

The two young people who have been in town since their marriage on April 14, at St. Paul's Church, Oakland, left for San Francisco early this week. Lt. Sleeper resumes Navy duty soon and will go to sea after a short period at Treasure Island. Mrs. Sleeper, is the former Dorothy Marwedel of Piedmont and has been associated with a law firm in San Francisco since graduation from University of California.

Longwood, Mrs. B. Atlee Taylor's home on Lobos between Third and Fourth, will be the scene of the May 10th meeting of the Wayfarer's Guild. Gathering at 2 o'clock, members will hear Mrs. Willis D. Capt. Colvin On Leave

Mrs. W. P. Colvin has returned from several days spent in San Francisco as the guest of Miss Josie Darrah, bringing her daughter, Mrs. W. L. Hennessy (the former Macki Colvin). Mrs. Hennessy has just traveled through the midwest on a belated honeymoon trip and said goodbye to her husband, who has returned to New Orleans, preparatory to going overseas. The highlight of Mrs. Colvin's trip was to see again her son, Capt. William P. Colvin, commanding officer of a medical hospital ship platoon, who has just returned from duty. The junior Mrs. Colvin, who lived here for a time, is now in New Rochelle, New York, and her husband leaves shortly to visit her during his leave.

Leaves Sunday

William Askew Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Askew of Torres Street, will leave on Sunday, which happens also to be his eighteenth birthday, for San Francisco. Here he will begin a training to be completed later at Catalina, which will prepare him for service with the merchant marine. William is currently a member of the high school senior class; however, it is thought that his departure will not interfere with his graduation. In his last few days at home he is taking every opportunity to enjoy the trout fishing season.

Mrs. Collins Hostess

Members of the Army Daughters gathered at Mrs. James Collins' home for a business meeting on Tuesday evening, April 24. There was a good turn-out for the meeting with discussion centering about plans for future activities. Although it was a strictly business meeting, Mrs. Collins surprised her guests with refreshments and the evening took on a social ending.

Mrs. Douglass Here

Mrs. Tom Douglass, now living in Alameda, but for many years a Carmelite, is in town for several weeks visiting Mrs. Rowen Rapier. For the many friends of her son, Scott, Mrs. Douglass reports that when last heard from his duties as lieutenant in the maritime service had taken him to the Philippines. She also adds that when the war ends the family looks forward to coming again to Carmel to make their home.

Dionelts Return

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dionelt, after a four months vacation in Mexico, are again home to Carmel. Life there they found most refreshing and did much exploring of the interior of the country from the home base which they established in the beautiful little city of Taxco. They arrived on Friday.

Warshawskys Go North

A memorable view of the San Francisco Bay is one of the lures drawing Mr. and Mrs. Abel Warshawsky north during the next ten days. The view which is to seen from the windows of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Merrill Jr., Mr. Warshawsky hopes to incorporate within a painting, meanwhile enjoying the hospitality of the Merrill home.

Newcomer at P.O.

Mr. Frank Williams arrived here Monday from Santa Barbara to take the place of Harvey Herr on the Carmel Post Office staff. Mr. Herr, who presided over the parcel post window for several years, traded, with a post office employee in Cumberland, Md., the Cumberland man and Mr. Williams arranging so that the latter could have the Carmel post, while the former took Mr. Williams' place in Santa Barbara. Mrs. Williams is still in Santa Barbara hoping Mr. Williams will be able to rent a two bed room house with a yard so they can garden. "We fell in love with Carmel when we went through here on our vacation four years ago. Our son, who was stationed at Ft. Ord for eighteen months, intends to come to Carmel after the war and make his home here," Mr. Williams said. The son, Corp Frank A. Williams, Jr., and his wife are now at Ft. McArthur, where Corp Williams is attached to the post engineers.

Joins Red Cross

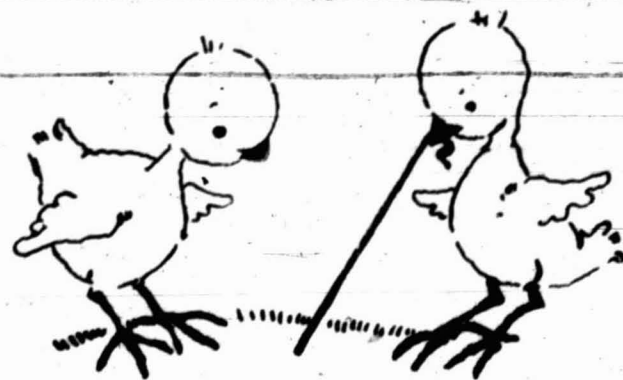

Mary Kellogg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Kellogg of Scenic and Eleventh, left today for Washington, D.C., and two weeks of Red Cross school training, with overseas duty to follow. This new venture follows close upon the heels of Miss Kellogg's previous position as personnel manager of Sears Roebuck Company in San Francisco with but a ten day holiday, which she has spent with her family here in Carmel.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

For the subject "Everlasting Punishment" the Christian Science Golden Text on Sunday, May 6, is taken from Ezekiel: "Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?" (18:23).

One of the Bible verses in the Lesson-Sermon is Psalms 130:7: "Let Israel hope in the Lord: for with the Lord there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption." A correlative citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Blot out the images of mortal thought and its beliefs in sickness and sin. Then, when thou art delivered to the judgment of Truth, Christ, the judge will say, 'Thou art whole!'" (p. 391).

Like To Dodge Bullets? Write PW On Your Jacket

Tuesday morning at the Carmel High School an Army officer and highway patrolman came into the office to say that they had heard that a person dressed in a prisoner of war uniform had been seen riding a bicycle down the highway. After they left, a Carmel policeman entered to report the same news, but added that it might possibly be a student. After a little searching this proved to be correct. This information was broadcast over the loudspeaker with the warning that escaped prisoners of war were treated severely and the impersonator might get accidentally shot. But after the boy who had unwittingly caused this trouble appeared (he had written "PW" in chalk on a blue jean jacket), everything was straightened out to the satisfaction of all authorities.

Truth Emerging In World Struggle Says C. S. Speaker

"The irresistible advance of divine Truth and Love is stirring human thought to its depths, assuring the triumph of right in the current world struggle, and healing sickness with growing efficacy as the religion of Christ Jesus becomes better understood," said Paul A. Harsch, C. B. S., of Toledo, Ohio, a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, speaking in Carmel last Sunday under auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist. The subject of his lecture was, "Christian Science: The Religion of Reality."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Mabel S. Frazier.

"The months that are immediately behind us are ones that we shall not be likely to forget," Mr. Harsch said. "History will record them as among the most momentous of all time. There is every reason to believe that the period upon which we are now entering will be even more memorable. It will in all probability bring to everyone unusual experiences, unexpected changes, radical readjustments."

"The interval between the year 1866, when the healing Christ, Truth, appeared to Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer, Founder, and Leader of Christian Science, and this present year of grace, 1945, constitutes a lapse of only a trifle over three quarters of a century. Yet during that extraordinarily brief period, the thinking of the world has experienced a transformation so profound and so radical that few as yet perceive its significance and still fewer recognize its source."

"This altered thinking cuts deep into the very heart of accepted theory and practice along almost all material lines. We are convinced that this change in thinking has stemmed from an improved concept of man's responsibility to his fellowman. This in turn is the result of a bettered understanding of Deity, and a realization, at least in part, that in their true spiritual nature all men are sons of God, endowed with the dignity, rights, and privileges of such sonship. In other words, mortals are beginning to glimpse the underlying reality of all things."

The pace of human advancement has been accelerated tremendously in recent times, the lecturer continued, especially since the discovery of Christian Science.

"Again truth, irresistible in its advance, has brought mankind to this new crisis," he said, with reference to the world upheaval. "Again we are deep in the throes of a mighty contest, the great battle of mortal mind to retain its hold on humanity. It is the battle of wrong against right, of error against Truth, of human hate against divine Love, the battle which can have but one ultimate result, namely, the complete destruction of the so-called forces of evil. This battle will only be concluded when the reality of all is found that 'man does stand as God's own child, the image of His love,' as a beloved hymn in the Christian Science Hymnal puts it."

Mr. Harsch explained that the words "Truth" and "Love," when capitalized, are two of seven synonyms for God in the teaching of Christian Science. The other synonyms are Life, Mind, Soul, Spirit, and Principle.

"This, then, is the message of the real which Christian Science has for us and for all mankind. It speaks of perfection, completeness, satisfaction, salvation—now. It promises an inward peace and spiritual poise now, not hereafter. All this and more it offers to those whose will accept its teachings, use the Principle it sets up as All-in-all, and gladly accept the government of that perfect Principle."

Mother, Grandmother To Face Grand Jury In Children's Death

"Had the alarm been turned in before the fire became so involved, we might have been able to save the lives of the two older children," Fire Chief Vincent Torras said following the fire Saturday night in the cottage Thirteenth and Mission which took the lives of Linda, 5 months, Barbara 2 years and Thomas Van Fossen, three years.

The children had been left locked at home while the mother, Mrs. Harold R. Van Fossen, and their grandmother, Mrs. Catharine Becker, had gone to the Mission Ranch Club. Their father, Cpl. Van Fossen is with a replacement division in France.

District Attorney Anthony Brazil will lay the evidence before the Grand Jury for them to determine whether or not an indictment for manslaughter should be brought against Mrs. Van Fossen and Mrs. Becker.

When the fire was reported at 10:11 p. m. by a motorist, the flames were then shooting 40 feet into the air. The fire department arrived at the blaze at 10:13 and the room in which the children were sleeping was a mass of smoke and flames. When Jack Montgomery, John Moltani, James McKenzie, Torras and Cpl. Roscoe N. Allen succeeded in removing the children the infant was already dead, and the lung injury was so severe to the older children that
